Commentary on the Daily Office Lectionary

The Rev. Ben Jefferies, Editor, Lent, A.D. 2016

The Sources

Thomas Cranmer's vision for the daily reading of Scripture was that it would cover “the whole of Holy Scripture (or the greatest part thereof)”. That vision has been upheld. The lectionary submitted here is essentially an expanded version of the lectionary within the 1962 Book of Common Prayer (Canada). A great debt is owed for the careful and wise selection and ordering of readings that was created by the Canadian church. The present lectionary is 92% identical to the 1962 Daily Office Lectionary (DOL). Three substantial amendments were made to it.

The first: When the greater part of an Old Testament book was included, the readings were expanded so that the entire book will be read, with no omissions. Mary Ann Masters and Jane Masters (sisters of Bishop Charles Masters) provided an invaluable service in listing and identifying what was omitted in the 1962 DOL, and those omissions were in many places inserted inside parentheses, to indicate the optional nature of their inclusion. This system means that a shorter reading may be maintained, but for those who wish to read through whole books of the bible in sequence, it is now much easier to do so. (Other than the addition of the genealogies of Jesus, the New Testament readings in the 62 DOL did not need any expansion, since these books were already included in their entirety)

The second: There are two readings for Sundays in the 1962 DOL, on a two-year cycle, even though the week-day readings are only on a one-year cycle. For clarity's sake, and since readings for Sunday are further supplied by the separate Eucharistic lectionary, the two-year cycle was distilled into a single set of readings for Sundays in the DOL. Readings which were not found anywhere else in the lectionary were kept (again, thank you to the Masters sisters for their surveying work), then the Gospels were given precedence, as were OT books not read in their entirety elsewhere in the year.

The third: The Song of Songs, which in the 1962 lectionary has only one appearance, has been introduced into the evening lessons of Easter Week. The reasons for this are several. In the first place, as one of the Megillot, the Jewish lectionary reads it at the feast of the Passover. This indicates that the book is to be interpreted first and foremost allegorically. There is even a rabbinic legend that the Song of Songs was whispered in the wind and through the waves as Israel passed through the Red Sea. Indeed, until the Modern Era and the advent of critical scholarship, the Church has always understood the book as an allegory. By placing the Song of Songs in Easter Week, the reader and listener will be forced to ask the question, “why are we reading this now?” and the allegorical interpretation – that it is a tale of the love between Christ and his Church – will demand one's attention, God's people having just been freshly reminded of the love Christ showed them on the Cross.

The Results

The result of this work, built on the 1962 Canadian Daily Office Lectionary (DOL) are as follows: In the course of one year,

The Following books are read through in their entirety TWICE:

|             |                   |         |
|-------------|-------------------|---------|
| John        | 1&2 Thessalonians | 1 Peter |
| Acts        | 1 & 2 Timothy     | 1 John  |
| Ephesians   | Titus             | 2 John  |
| Philippians | Hebrews           | 3 John  |
| Colossians  | James             |         |

The following books are read through at least ONCE in their entirety:

Old Testament

|             |              |                   |
|-------------|--------------|-------------------|
| Exodus      | 1 Kings      | Song Of Songs     |
| Deuteronomy | 2 Kings      | Isaiah            |
| Ruth        | Esther       | Jeremiah          |
| 1 Samuel    | Job          | 12 Minor Prophets |
| 2 Samuel    | Ecclesiastes | Daniel            |

New Testament

|         |               |            |
|---------|---------------|------------|
| Matthew | 1 Corinthians | Jude       |
| Mark    | 2 Corinthians | Revelation |
| Luke    | Galatians     |            |
| Romans  | Philemon      |            |

Substantial portions of the following books are read:

|         |          |              |
|---------|----------|--------------|
| Genesis | Judges   | Proverbs     |
| Numbers | Ezra     | Lamentations |
| Joshua  | Nehemiah | Ezekiel      |

And from the Apocrypha:

|            |                |        |
|------------|----------------|--------|
| 1 Macabees | Ecclesiasticus | Wisdom |
| Baruch     |                |        |

Small selections are read from:

|           |                  |
|-----------|------------------|
| Leviticus | 1 & 2 Chronicles |
|-----------|------------------|

The sections that are omitted in these books fall into two categories: (1) Those that do not lend themselves to immediate public edification, such as genealogies, detailed descriptions of the sacrificial system, or lengthy detail about sinful exploits. (2) Those that are repetitious of content already presented. For instance, there are a few sections omitted in Judges and Proverbs that only repeat nearly identical things in previous readings.

The only books that have large omissions (here, and the 1962 lectionary) are the books of the Chronicles, because their material is mostly duplicated in Samuel and Kings, which are read in their entirety.

Daily Office Lectionary

Approved for use in the Anglican Church in North America, Lent, A.D. 2016

Use of Psalms in the Daily Office

The recitation of the Psalms is central to daily worship throughout the whole of Christian Tradition.

Anglicanism at the time of the Reformation established that the entire Psalter should be read in the Daily Office once each month, according to the pattern printed with this Lectionary. Contemporary practice sometimes lessens the number of the daily psalms, which practice is permissible as long as the entire Psalter is regularly read. For any day, the psalms appointed may be reduced in number according to local circumstance. If there is only one office, the psalms may be drawn from those appointed for Morning or Evening that Day. If a two month cycle of psalms is desired, the Morning psalms may be read in one month and the Evening psalms in the next. When there is a thirty-first day of the month, psalms from the Psalms of Ascents, Psalms 120 to 134, are used.

The Gloria Patri may be said after each psalm, or at the conclusion of all the psalms of the day. The manner of recitation of the psalms can be adapted to size of congregation and physical setting: responsive, antiphonal, or unison, and by whole or half verse. For purposes of reflective pause, half-verse recitation or musical chant, the asterisk (*) printed in each verse indicates the place where the verse divides.

Psalms proper to a feast or fast day, or to the lessons appointed for the day, may be substituted for those provided in the thirty day cycle.

Annual Cycle of Lessons Appointed

The principle adopted at the Reformation was that “the whole of Holy Scripture (or the greatest part thereof)” should be read each year. This cycle of lessons is based on that principle. Much of the New Testament is read twice.

When a Lesson begins with a pronoun, the reader shall substitute the appropriate noun. Verses printed within parentheses are permissive additions to the appointed passages. The letter “a” after the number of a verse signifies the first part of that verse, and the letter “b” the second part.
